

Appendix E-7: Hazardous Materials Technical Memorandum

Ashland Avenue Bus Rapid Transit Project Environmental Assessment

Memorandum

Date: August 8, 2013

Subject: Hazardous Materials

Prepared by: CDM Smith, Inc.

Introduction

The Chicago Transit Authority (CTA), in cooperation with the Chicago Department of Transportation (CDOT), Department of Housing and Economic Development (DHED), and the Federal Transit Authority (FTA), is proposing to implement Bus Rapid Transit (BRT) features and service along Ashland Avenue in Chicago, Illinois. The limits for the Ashland Avenue Bus Rapid Transit (BRT) Project are:

- Irving Park Road on the north to 95th Street on the south (approximately 16.1 miles)

CTA currently operates local bus service within the Ashland Avenue BRT Project limits. The proposed improvements are limited in scope and would be implemented within existing roadway rights-of-way:

- Construction of 35 median BRT stations with shelters and pedestrian boarding areas
- Upgrade of traffic signal systems to include transit signal priority
- Implementation of queue jump lanes and turn restrictions at intersections
- Removal of travel lanes to accommodate a designated bus lane in each direction
- Pavement milling and resurfacing
- Streetscape improvements including medians, landscaping, and ADA-accessibility upgrades

Purpose

This memorandum analyzes the potential impacts of the Ashland Avenue BRT Project with respect to hazardous materials. Potential sources of hazardous materials impacts, both within and adjacent to the Ashland Avenue BRT Project were identified. For the purpose of this analysis, a hazardous material is any media such as soil, groundwater, or building materials that contain detectable concentrations of any state or federally regulated contaminant.

Methodology and Results

The historical and present uses of areas within the project corridor were evaluated for potential sources of hazardous material impacts. This included a search of local, state, and federal regulatory databases was conducted by Environmental Data Resources, Inc. (EDR) to identify sites that currently or have historically handled, stored, transported, released, or disposed of hazardous or regulated waste as these types of sites are potential sources of hazardous material contamination. Contamination can occur from a source located directly within the project footprint or from an off-site source where contamination that has migrated to within the project footprint.

Search distances were either 0.1 or 0.25 mile from Ashland Avenue, as summarized in Table 1 in Attachment A. The search distance was based on the nature of the sites included in the database and the separation distance at which impacts become unlikely. Table 1 also summarizes the number of sites identified by database type. Attachment B provides figures depicting the locations of the identified sites relative to the Ashland Avenue BRT Project. A complete list of each individual site identified by EDR is provided in Table 2 in Attachment A.

No National Priority List (NPL), Federal Engineering or Institutional Control, or State Brownfield sites were identified within the search distance. The most common type of site identified included Underground Storage Tank (UST), Leaking Underground Storage Tank (LUST), and Resource Conservation and Recovery Act Small Quantity Generator (RCRA-SQG) sites. These types of sites are present along the majority of the project corridor and are typical of urban areas.

Sites of the greatest concern include Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Information System Sites (CERCLIS), CERCLIS No Further Remediation Planned (CERCLIS-NFRAP), State Site Unit Listings (SSU), Solid Waste Disposal or Landfill sites (SWF/LF), Illinois Planning Commission Active and Inactive Solid Waste Disposal Site Inventory (IL NIPC) sites, and RCRA-Large Quantity Generator sites (RCRA-LQG) adjacent to the Ashland Avenue BRT Project (see Table 3 in Attachment A). These types of sites have a higher potential for wide-spread contamination based on the type and nature of activities that resulted in their listings.

In addition to regulated sites and given the urban setting of the project area, the potential exists for the presence of typical urban fill throughout the entire project area. Typical urban fill materials contain elevated concentrations of polynuclear aromatic hydrocarbons and metals due to nearby roadways, railways, and industrial and commercial lands uses and activities. Industrial and commercial land uses and activities include coal yards, gas stations, auto repair shops, machine shops, manufacturing plants, dry cleaners, USTs, substations, and transformers. This type of contamination is not necessarily associated with a release from a specific site or source. In addition, urban fill may include contaminated building demolition debris, which was commonly used as fill material in excavations, to increase elevations at sites during development.

Environmental Impacts

No-Build Alternative

Under the No-Build Alternative, the project would not be constructed and no impacts to hazardous materials would occur.

Ashland Avenue BRT Project

Although the project footprint is limited to within the existing right-of-way and no property acquisition is expected, soil and/or groundwater within the right-of-way during could be contaminated with hazardous materials from urban fill and/or adjacent or nearby regulated hazardous material sites identified in the database search.

Construction of the Ashland Avenue BRT Project would include subsurface ground disturbance activities, which could result in contaminated soil and/or groundwater being encountered. Subsurface ground disturbance activities would include excavation to between three and five feet below ground surface (bgs) in order to construct the slab-on-grade platforms and shelters at the proposed BRT stations and the landscaped medians between stations. In addition, although it is not expected or required, if desired by the utility owner, existing utilities may be relocated at the time of construction, which would require limited subsurface excavation to approximately the same depth bgs.

Because landscaped medians are proposed and utilities are present along the majority of the project, excavation could occur along the entire project length; however, it is expected that the majority of excavation would occur at the proposed BRT stations during installation of the platforms and shelters. Table 4 in Attachment A summarizes the number and type of sites identified within 0.1 to 0.25 miles of each proposed BRT station, where the majority of subsurface excavation is expected to occur.

Impacts

Procedures for identifying, characterizing, managing, handling, storing, and disposing of contaminated soil and groundwater encountered during construction activities would be developed prior to construction. These procedures would cover the entire project area, as it is assumed that all material has at least some level of contamination associated with it. Contaminated material generated during construction would be disposed of at a facility permitted to accept such material.

In addition health and safety plans for construction activities would be developed by the contractors and read and signed by all workers prior to starting any work. The health and safety would identify potential contaminants of concern, required personal protection equipment and procedures, and emergency response procedures.

Right-of-way acquisition is not anticipated for the Ashland Avenue BRT Project; however, if it was to occur, there is a substantial potential liability associated with ownership and acquisition of
